

Captain Förster, part of the bMC GROUP, is looking to hear from interesting candidates for a position based in our Hamburg or Bremen office. Captain Förster is a dedicated Marine Survey Company established in the 1970s. bMC Group is a young and flexible group of companies with a global client base and area of operations.

We are seeking an energetic, self-motivated individual with an open-minded approach. We would be interested to hear from candidates with a marine surveying background, however we are also interested to hear from candidates looking to make a start on a versatile career as

Marine and Cargo Surveyor (m/f/d)

German speaking and fluent English as well as a high written standard of both is a must, a third language would be ideal. The position will involve working irregular hours and significant travel to work sites, primarily in Northern Germany but occasionally further afield. When working from the office, communications with our clients including face-to-face appointments and reporting on site surveys will be just a part of the daily activity.

In return a committed and motivated individual can expect to receive a competitive remuneration package, a company car which is also available for private use as well as flexible working approach including home working when suitable. In addition, we offer an interesting and varied work environment as part of a growing, dynamic and ambitious group of companies.

If you think that this sounds like you then get in touch. Send an email including your CV and your earliest possible date of joining to Tim Meyer
